

Commercials on the radio are becoming increasingly offensive. During all hours commercials for sexual enhancing drugs or treatments are being advertised. Just playing the radio in your car has become troublesome trying to guide young children without having to explain why the commercials are talking about increasing a couples sexual performance. It's about time the FCC increased their control and enforced standards.